We always keep an open room here in Rome at the Collegio Internazionale del Gesù. But lest any prospective visitors - especially prospective Jesuit visitors, who always seem to be looking for free places to stay - get the idea of lodging in it for a few nights, let me apologize and say that we don't use it as a guest room but rather as a sanctuary. For its former resident was St. Ignatius of Loyola.

St. Ignatius spent almost the last twenty years of his life here in Rome, much of it occupied with administrative work, governing the burgeoning Society of Jesus which he and a handful of companions had recently founded. It was an unexpectedly sedentary closing chapter for a man who had wandered far and wide and he referred to himself in his autobiography as "the Pilgrim."

My own path to Rome has had its fair share of wandering. It started in Milwaukee at Marquette University, where I felt the first stirrings of a vocation and so, after graduation in 2005, moved on, not to medical school as was my original plan, but rather to the Jesuit novitiate in St. Paul. Then to Fordham University in New York for philosophy study. Then back to the Midwest, to teach at Creighton Prep in Omaha. Finally, here to Rome, for my last state of Jesuit formation for being ordained a priest.

Somehow, though, telling the story in that way misses the heart of the matter. It sticks pins on a map of where I've been, but fails to capture the flesh and blood moments in which formation really occurs. Like sitting on the rooftop of your community in the Bronx looking out over the New York skyline and chatting with your Jesuit buddies about baseball, metaphysics, and what God has been doing in your prayer.

Or sweeping a gym floor in Omaha before your freshman basketball team comes into practice and having a student on the cusp of tears come to you seeking some advice and consolation amidst the most recent problem adolescent life has thrown at him. Or chatting over insipid prison food with a different boy of the same age who is facing a long sentence and sees no way out of the gang in which he's become inextricably enmeshed.

I bring myriad such moments to my current theological study at the Pontifical Gregorian University. My fellow students all bring their own. Some mornings, before entering the heady lecture halls of the Gregorian, I stand in the piazza outside, chat with the beggars, and watch the students stream in. James Joyce's definition of "Catholic" is fitting: "Here come everybody." Lay student and seminarians and religious, wearing Roman collars and T-shirts and every type of religious habit imaginable. Their faces tell of the more than 150 countries from which they come and to which they will return to be leaven in their local churches. Combine this diversity with the history lying all around us in the churches, relics, and ruins of Rome and it creates a fecund milieu in which to prepare to be a Jesuit priest.

Amidst it all, though, I keep coming back to the one, small, Basque pilgrim who arrived here almost five-hundred years ago, St. Ignatius. Sometimes I go into his room by myself and sit there and pray with him, thinking about the varied experiences he brought to Rome and I try to understand my own.

A commentator once wrote of St. Ignatius, "A universal molder of men because he himself remained universally pliable." Maybe that's what it's all about. Something about universality, pliability, molding. We call it "formation" after all. Maybe the pathways we walk are not so much horizontal between city and city, but rather vertical, into the depths of the human heart and upward to God, the God who forms us, massaging our stony hearts into hearts of flesh.

As my pilgrim steps walk among the Roman cobblestones through this final stage of formation, such is my daily prayer to the Lord: to give me a heart like His own, a heart of the shepherd, a heart on fire with His love.

Vincent L. Strand, SJ, a native of Dousman, WI joined the Jesuits after graduating from Marquette University in 2005. He spent two years at the novitiate in St. Paul and continued his Jesuit formation at Fordham University in New York. During the next stage of formation, Regency, he taught at Creighton Prep in Omaha. Currently, he is living in Rome and studying theology at the Pontifical Gregorian University.

IN THE SPOTLIGHT... OUR NEW K3 PROGRAM TEACHERS

by Dr. Kevin F. Hughes, Christ King School Principal

Mrs. Rosemary Wirth Lead Teacher

It is with great excitement that I share with you the K3 lead teacher for Christ King School in 2017-18. Our new faculty member is Mrs. Rosemary Wirth. As a K3 lead teacher, she will be taking on the challenge and amazing opportunity of leading the development of an exceptional K3 program for Christ King School, along with teaching the K3 classes every Tuesday and Thursday morning. I would like to take this opportunity to introduce Rosemary Wirth and express what a blessing it is that she accepted this role at Christ King School. Over the past thirty years, Rosemary has had a wide variety of teaching experiences working with early childhood learners through college level students in both special education and regular education. Mrs. Wirth started a K3 program at St. Joseph School in Wauwatosa and has been teaching there for the past ten years. She received both her BA and ME degrees from Cardinal Stritch University.

Mrs. Jennifer Lancaster Teacher

Mrs. Jennifer Lancaster will be enthusiastically joining the Christ King School family in a new role this coming school year. In addition to wearing the "hat" as Mother to two daughters enrolled at Christ King, and two daughters who graduated from CK, she will be serving as a K3 teacher in our new program. Previous to accepting this position, Mrs. Lancaster worked as a substitute teacher for Christ King School and helped in numerous volunteer capacities since 2002. Her husband Mark is involved in the school in many ways too, but mostly as a volunteer basketball coach of late. Mrs. Jennifer Lancaster earned her undergraduate degree from St. Norbert College with a degree in Elementary Education and an emphasis in Early Childhood Education. She continued on and received her Master's Degree from Carroll University in Elementary Education. Mrs. Lancaster has experience teaching in several other schools prior to this opportunity, all the while raising her four daughters. Her spare time consists of family sporting events and taking time to downhill ski. She heads "north" whenever possible for relaxation. We are blessed to have Mrs. Lancaster as one of our incredible educators, particularly in helping to develop and implement our new K3 program in 2017-2018.

Everyday Stewardship

Many young people want to make a path for themselves in life without the help and guidance of others. My own young adult son oftentimes refuses assistance because he feels that he must learn to go it alone and have his achievements based solely upon his effort. However, few truly get anywhere of circumstance without the aid of others.

The body of Christ only functions well when we move together and help each other. Unfortunately, too often parts of the body seek to do their own thing and do not integrate with the other parts. We use our gifts in ways that are only focused on our own gains and our own being. But be mindful, our gifts exist in us to be cultivated and shared with God and his people.

In the same manner, with Jesus as the head of this body, he is there for us as well. In Jesus we find our rest and assistance with our burdens. I cannot imagine life without the compassion and aid of our God. If it isn't bad enough that some people fail to lean on their brothers and sisters, some of them fail to ever turn to God.

This is never good stewardship. A stewardship way of life seeks to share and integrate with others, especially Jesus. We have been created for community. If we take seriously our discipleship, a true relationship with Jesus always beckons us into community with other believers. Here we are strongest. Here we are the most fruitful. Here we are Christ's body on earth.

NINE YEARS AGO, two friends made plans to tailgate before a Brewers game. One invited a seminarian (a former ice hockey player studying to become a priest) who then invited his father to come along.

Come game day, these four men sat around a Smokey Joe grill, ate brats, drank some beers, and talked about sports, family, and life in general. On occasion, the conversation dipped even deeper and we talked about stuff like faith and religion. Old friends and new, we shared in our questions about the journey of life. There was a special vibe around that fire. We didn't know it then, but Ballpark Day of Faith was born.

Since that day, that small circle of friends has grown into an annual tradition that hosts about a thousand people. We've even added Sunday Mass and a choir, can you believe it? But our goal is very simple: To celebrate a day of beauty and joy where all are welcome. Nothing too heavy. But while light, it's also possibly a little more deeper and meaningful than your average Brewers tailgater and game.

When we gathered around that first Smokey Joe, we got to share in those burning questions of life and faith that we all carry. What we discovered is that the party can be even better when these things go together. Now, we're inviting you to join us. While we happen to be Catholic, whether you are a person of faith, little faith or no faith ... all are welcome to the party.

So bring your family. Invite a friend. On behalf of the entire team, welcome to Ballpark Day of Faith.

Warmly,
Bob and Claudine Simi
